Pure luxury

This beautiful luxurious table is made from wood of the lychee tree and is extremely durable. The wood comes from Indonesia. The lychee trees are mainly grown for their fruit and honey, so the wood is actually a side product. Lychee wood is strong and durable and therefore valuable. It is considered to be almost indestructible and is used as both construction and wagner wood in furniture. A lychee table is therefore pure luxury!

Beautifully well-shaped wood

Suar wood is found in Indonesia. It's a fast-growing hardwood species. It is beautiful well-shaped wood, extremely strong and durable. Suar trees can be easily recognized by their characteristic umbrella-shaped canopy (hence the name rain tree). The roots of the Suar tree are as widely fanned out as the top of the tree and it is precisely those roots that we used to make this lamp. In this way the entire tree is used.

Proud of our craftsmen

The distinctiveness of our collection is not only created by our unique items and eye-catching appearance of our articles. At Gert Snel we like to take it one step further. In addition to the existing articles, we also create our own items in our workshop. Are you interested in a custom-made lamp? Our talented craftsman is ready for anything!

In his studio Peter creates lamps from vases, tree trunks or other beautiful items that can serve as a lamp base. In the workplace he prepares the electricity. After curing and assembling, the lamp base is ready. Peter offers the craftsmanship, the only thing for you left to do is to find a matching Lampshade and you will have a truly unique lamp after your own taste.

Antique grindstone table

This beauty is an original antique grindstone table, also known as a Chakki table or grinder table. The table is created in India, made from wood and sometimes finished with metal. A rural family from India uses two large grindstones to grind flour with. Those grindstones are found in these wooden tables. Traces of use can be visible, and every grinder is unique. Some are richly decorated with wood carving; others have a more basic look to them. An eye-catcher with a story; a typical Gert Snel piece!

Candleholder

Our collection contains many items with a rich history that have gotten a completely new function. This candleholder is a great example of this. Old palaces or houses oftenly contained several pillars where the roof rested on. Many of those buildings have been demolished since and the rest materials are being used for other purposes. The same goes for this pedestal that used to support the pillar. Or could it be the capital of the pillar? Let your imagination run free!

Teak wood

Teak wood is a greasy and durable type of wood. It contains tones of red, which creates a warm look and depth. Teak wood will get a lived-through look when time passes, which only brings extra character to the wood. Our teak wooden items come from far. The drying room ensures that the wood withstands the transition from a wet Indonesian climate to the Dutch climate and remains its beautiful looks.

Woodworking by our craftsmen

Our craftsmen restore items with an eye for detail or carefully make cosmetic adjustments when needed. In our workshop Theo and Co execute the finest handicraft. When we receive a shipment, it often has come a long way and been through a lot. This can have a huge impact on wood. For this reason, we store the wooden items in our drying room after they are unloaded. After this they are moved to the recovery room, where they eventually end up in the workshop. Here Theo restores or adjusts on request and Co does the fine paint work. They also restore items that were damaged or broken during shipment or give a completely new function to an existing item.

Table bases

Compile your own table with our beautiful table bases. All with their own typical Gert Snel appearance. Our table bases are available in various dimensions and materials. From classic to modern and from small to large. Perfect for project furnishing since we have different dimensions available. To match our bases, we also offer table tops separately.
